

maire in-depth

First of all, hi to everyone, especially our new members, I do hope you are all in good form, enjoying the sunshine, happy and busy. With so many of our 130 practitioners online, we feel the newsletter will sadly become a thing of the past as all information from the Foundation is uploaded onto our website on a daily basis. However, we hope this newsletter is not too repetitive. Again it's great to connect with you all and a great joy to keep all our members informed of what's going on. Lovely to hear from so many of you on a regular basis, and yes it does keep us all on our toes to see many of our members so active.

Corporate business is coming our way, particularly in London and I think it essential that we structure and put in place some format and basic guidelines for the benefit of all our members. This will now be given top priority, so we will be getting back to all A.S.A.P. It is so essential that we all work together and get the structure right. I would be grateful if interested parties let us know of their intention of working in the corporate area.

To our new members, do remember we are always here to support you, and if you achieve some excellent results with case studies, please let the Foundation know as this will give us a positive footing in the door to approach the media.

Case studies ready to go on the web-site.

Many many thanks to the lovely Emma Jenkins for such hard work and great professionalism in collating all the case studies and compiling it all to go on the web. On behalf of us all, a most sincere thanks Emma. It most certainly will create great interest, with so many people looking on our site to actually read the benefits of Bi-Aura Therapy in treating different ailments. We urge all our practitioners to send in any case successful studies no matter how 'insignificant' you may think they are. The next task is to forward all of it to Jean, who is our computer expert in London. Jean will create an area on the website to accommodate this new development. May I also take this opportunity to congratulate and thank my long suffering friend Jean for his most professional work in creating an excellent website. Thank you again Jean.

Professional Development Weekend for all our members.

Without a doubt the highlight of the year for everyone. We have booked this year in London the delightful Kairos Centre, Mount Angelus Road, Roehampton (near Putney) London SW15 4JA. The date for all your dairies: the weekend of Friday 26th until Sunday 28th November 2004.

Come on you Irish team! It wouldn't be the same without your great contribution, so hopefully we will see as many of you as possible. On a practical level, we will ask the Irish practitioners to book their own flights, there are now such good bargains, so do shop around and book early; I fly regularly to Ireland and flights can be as cheap as £10.00 each way!

Future plans for the Bi-Aura Foundation.

Many of you will know of our great success in Canada, this was only brought about by the lovely Violetta who made it all possible. Michael Dalton went out for a week and was made to feel so welcome, not to mention the Bi-Aura Therapy which was received with great enthusiasm and was the busiest stand at the exhibition. On the strength of this success we plan to start our Bi-Aura Training in Canada in the spring of next year. Great times ahead for many of us.

Now its time for thanks to so many.

A most sincere and warm thanks to my dear colleagues Michael, Linnie and most recently Dan for their unfailing and great professionalism in running the training courses. As you know, by now we have been awarded A Level status by Open College Network in the U.K. for the Bi-Aura training courses. We have since learned that it is the only course ever to have been awarded the highest units of 18. Most courses hoping for accreditation going through the Open College Network meet the curriculum of 15 units. What joy to learn we have achieved the ultimate points. The greatest thanks must go to Linnie for achieving this award for the Foundation.

The Bi-Aura Evaluation Forms

On behalf of all the team, it gives me great pleasure to warmly thank Eunice Goodwin for her very valued work in putting together the evaluation forms.

It really is critical that we all take these forms seriously and send them to her on a regular basis. Simply said, these forms are all that's between us and recognition by orthodox medicine. If we do not have the forms we cannot go forward to audit and evaluation stage. Please read the letter from Eunice regarding the evaluation forms.

Honorary members

We are delighted to welcome three new distinguished honorary members - Dr Deepak Chopra, Jan De Vries and last but not least a great thanks to Professor Jayne Goddard President of the C.M.A. who has also kindly accepted the invitation to also become an honorary member.

Finally from the heart!!

A warm thank you to each and everyone of you for all your kind encouragement and support. Running the Foundation has always had moments of great joy and buzz and at times experiences of deep despair and anguish. However, I will endeavour to continue and play a part in moving Bi-Aura forward to the next stage for the benefit of all our members. It is a great joy and a great privilege to lead this Foundation, surrounded by great professional advice and support; I will continue doing so to the best of my ability. Love and Light to every one of you.

How does Bi-Aura differ from Reiki? Linnie Ridley explains

Obviously there is a similarity in that both therapies are using energy to activate the body's natural ability to heal itself, as well as being a holistic treatment. But the Reiki healer acts as a channel for the life energy which the recipient of a Reiki treatment absorbs via the healer.

The recipient will be lying down, generally on a therapy table, fully clothed and covered with a blanket. The therapist will then gently place their hands in various positions over the body. Reiki energy will naturally flow to the areas where it is needed most, adjusting itself according to the needs of the recipient.

In Reiki treatment, use is made solely of a concentrated form of cosmic energy.

In contrast, Bi-Aura therapy uses both cosmic and earth energy to energise and balance the body and much of the session will be conducted in an upright or seated position. When a client is bedridden the techniques are adapted accordingly.

There is little or no physical contact, as the practitioner works mainly off the body in the energy field, the main focus being to draw trapped or blocked energy out of the energy matrix.

Once this energy has been dispersed, and the natural flow of energy restored, the practitioner will channel cosmic and or earth energy as appropriate.

Clients are asked to commit to a course of a minimum of four sessions. These sessions follow a structured format with more powerful techniques being introduced as the clients body adjusts to the new energy flow.

Letter from Linnie

Hi everyone,
Things have been going really well this year and I just seem to get busier and busier. The animal side of my practise is developing all the time. As a consequence of the article in 'Horse' I have been able to share my good fortune with you all by referring enquirers to practitioners in their area and a lot of you have told me that they have been contacted direct from the website. It is my personal mission to build this side of Bi-Aura because of my love for animals predominantly, but also as a way for members to expand their practice as I find that people are generally more willing to spend money on their animals well being than they are on their own (myself included).

A lot of members have expressed a wish for training in working with animals, so I am proposing to run one day courses for interested parties. These days will include animal communication as well as techniques and because of the sensitivity of animals, I feel only small groups of up to 6 would be appropriate. If you are interested please get in touch with me and I will collate addresses to arrange venues that are accessible.

Supported by the :
British Complementary Medicine Association (BCMA)
Aromatherapy Organisations Council (AOC)
Aromatherapy Trade Council (ATC)
Complementary Medicine Association (CMA)

The Complementary and Natural Healthcare Expo is a trade exhibition dedicated to the rapidly expanding areas of complementary & natural healthcare, nutrition and medicine. Set within a stunning waterfront environment in London's dynamic and thriving Docklands. The Bi-Aura Foundation will have a greater presence this year, come and meet us all on stand number 24-58 (next to the CMA) we will be demonstrating Bi-Aura therapy with 15 minute sessions given by Bi-Aura therapists. WE ALSO NEED VOLUNTEERS - PLEASE!!!
We will also be using a PIP Energy Field Imager to show visible effects on the light patterns around visitors during their sessions. It can be quite amazing to see the changes before and after in the light patterns around the body!
